THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

MONDAY

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

War Will Cost Seventy Billion Dollars

New York, Aug. 22.—Taking issue with other statisticians more moderate in their estimates, Nikola Tesla, the famous inventor of electrical contrivances, said today the total cost of the general war now going on probably will not be less than $70,000,000,000.

"The present war may easily involve 20,000,000 combatants," said Mr. Tesla. "I have seen an estimate of a total cost of $50,000,000 a day. This is too low. The number of those disabled through wounds and disease was recently placed at 500,000. This also, is too moderate. It would be less than two and one half per cent, and it must be remembered that in the most recent great war preceding this—the Balkan struggle—the casualties were ten times greater, or twenty-five per cent.

"Observe that it is reported Belgium lost $300,000,000 in two weeks' fighting where there were no large cities in the path of the Germans.

"The difficulty with most statisticians of war losses is that they simply consider the cost of military operations. This is a small fraction of the whole waste.

"To measure the losses due to war merely by statistical standards is absurd. An example will make this clear. The strain imposed upon a country in a state of siege is compelling of strict economy. The savings thus affected go to offset the drain of war. Theoretically it is impossible for a nation, by living on bread and water and curtailing all expenses, to accumulate enough for not only meeting the cost of military operations but leaving surplus besides. From the point of view of the statistician such a war, far from being costly, would be the very means of creating wealth. "It is equally unreasonable to define the waste of international conflict as the excess of waste in time of war over that in time of peace. A quantity 'b' may be deducted from a quantity 'a' and the difference will be 'a-b' on the supposition, however, that the quantities are composed of identical units.

"Now, while the same human beings are concerned both in peace and war, these two states bear no resemblance to each other. In one, reason and sober sense, a feeling of morality and desire to do justice prevail; in the other these beneficial influences are weakened, and folly and greed assert themselves. War changes individuals as well as values.

"A true appreciation of the enormous losses which are likely to result from this unprecedented calamity can only be gained by taking into account its effect on all phases and conditions of individual and national existence. Stated in the order of their magnitude these losses may be enumerated as follows:

"First, temporary or permanent shrinkage of wealth of nations as distinct from negotiable securities. The total wealth of the countries involved is about three hundred billions of dollars. Assume only a moderate production of ten per cent and suppose further that the war should last from six to seven months or about 200 days, as forecasted by experts, then the daily shrinkage will amount to $150,000,000. To be sure such depreciation of physical possessions is mostly due to ignorance and faint-heartedness of the people, for the properties are there and some are indestructible. But just the same the warring nations will lose credit and purchasing power and will be subjected for an indefinite period to sufferings and privations, all of which must be interpreted as loss of so much money.

Losses and Industrial Pursuits. "Second—All losses, individual and collective, caused by interference of war will stop wheelwork of manufacture, industry and commerce. These reflect particularly on the war market value of negotiable securities which constitute from twenty to thirty per cent of the whole national wealth. For obvious reasons they are apt to very large, and the shrinkage may easily amount for the above period to $100,000,000 a day.

"Third—Specific losses due to destruction of existing private and public property, including implements and materials of war. These will greatly depend on the circumstances, but may be placed at from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 a day.

Fourth—Loss of life and disabling through wounds and diseases. Judging from the data of the Balkan War, the casualties cannot be taken at less than fifteen per cent, making the total of 3,000,000. Assuming, an average of $2,500 per individual, this waste will be nearly $14,000,000 a day.

Fifth—Daily cost of military operations, which may amount from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. According to this rough estimate the total waste cannot be much less than $70,000,000,000, making almost twenty-five per cent of the total wealth of the countries in the world. In the best circumstances it will take from forty to fifty years to repair the financial damage, not to speak of the injury to the races and retardation of social progress in all directions.

GERMANS INTEND TO SIEZE NORTH COAST OF BELGIUM

PREPARING RAW SILK

The Washing Process is an important and delicate operation.

Raw silk is of three kinds, known to the trade as organzine, tram and couple. The organzine is used for the warp or woven materials, and the tram for the weft. Before these are dyed and prepared for weaving, the silkworm gum must be washed out by a process called "stripping." The couple silk is used for the manufacturing of the soft fabrics, such as messaline, chiffon, etc., and in order that these materials may retain their softness and pliability and admit of being crushed in the hand without showing any signs of creasing the couple silk must first undergo a process known as softening.

This process is a very delicate operation, and the quality of the silk depends very much upon the care with which the softening is done. In this case the silk is not stripped off the silkworm gum, but is immediately placed in a bath of pure olive oil soap. This bath is made up of about fifty parts of pure water to one of strong liquid soap. The silk is suspended in this bath on wooden rods and is moved back and forth by two operatives, who frequently turn it and keep it in constant motion. The bath is heated to 30 degrees R., and owing to the continuous agitation of the silk in the bath the silkworm gum, while not washed out, is made to permeate uniformly through the silk.

After being treated in this manner for about an hour the silk is removed and placed in another bath of lukewarm water, where it is again treated in the same way. This process continues for about fifteen minutes and is intended only to cleanse the silk. The skeins are then removed from the bath and placed in another consisting of about sixty parts of pure water to one of concentrated sulphuric acid heated to 60 degrees R. Here it is worked back and forth and frequently turned very slowly for about two hours or until it yields very readily to a pressure of the finger. It is then removed and given two thorough washings in cold water. It is then ready for the dyeing.—Scientific American.

Edible Flowers of India.

Many edible flowers, it appears, are to be found in India. One of the most appreciated grows on a tree about which we have very little information, but which in the country itself is named the "mihowad." The natives consume an enormous number of these flowers, whose pale yellow corollae are pulpy and thick, and they prepare them in various ways. When they are fresh they are put in cakes, to which they give a sweet flavor, but they are more especially used for making bread after they have been dried and reduced to flour. By allowing them to ferment a kind of wine is produced, and by distilling them a brandy is obtained of which the Hindus are very fond.

George IV's Hoardings.

One of the most inveterate hoarders on record was George IV. Not only was he averse to destroying books and papers, but he preferred everything that could possibly be kept. When he died all the suits of clothes he had worn for twenty years were discovered and sold by public auction. His executors also found secreted in various desks, drawers and cupboards numerous purses and pocketbooks crammed full of money to the extent, it is said, of £20,000, together with more sentimental treasures in the form of locks of hair from the tresses of forgotten beauties of the court.—London Graphic.

A Slow Horse.

One time when he was quite a young man Lincoln hired a livery stable horse to attend a convention where he expected to be nominated for some office. The horse went so slowly that when he reached there the convention was over and the other fellow nominated. On his return he irately asked the stable keeper if the horse was good for anything at all. "Yes, for drawing the hearse to the funeral," was the reply. Lincoln advised him earnestly never to send that horse to a funeral, for if he did judgment day would arrive before the corpse reached the grave.

LEMON TEXT

1 And Jesus answered and spake unto them again by parables, and said,

2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son,

3 And sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding, and they would not come.

4 Again he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner, my oxen and my fattings are killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage.

5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise:

6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.

7 But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth, and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.

8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which are bidden were not worthy.

9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.

10 And these servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.

11 And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man and a pupil, and he said, How art thou here?

12 And he said unto him, Behold, I was sitting on a wedding bench, and thou hast come in, and hast destroyed my place: and I have no room for thee.

13 And he will say unto him, Depart from me, thou wicked man. And he will go out, and he will weep, and he will say, Lord, Lord, open unto me.

14 Then said the king to the servants, Hind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into the outer darkness; there shall he weeping and gnashing of teeth.

THE WAR PROBLEM SOLVED

The most difficult problem facing southeast Alabama farmers now is the marketing of the cotton crop, on account of the European war. Any solution of this problem would relieve to a great degree the anxiety of the cotton growers.

The Munda Farms Company of Boynton, Fla., Dr. R. D. Blackshear, president, Dothan, Ala., owns six hundred acres of an fine truck and fruit lands as there are in the United States, and are offering a hundred acres more of their lands, in 5 or 10 acre tracts on reasonable terms until Sept. 1st.

The war will cause the prices of all food crops to advance and these lands produce an average of $221 per acre in food crops. Call on L. G. Bickers, Sales agent, Dothan, Ala., for further particulars.

W. F. Gregory is ill at his residence.

"UNCLE JOE" DISCOURSES ON THE DOTHAN DEVILMENT

Bishop Paine, in his "Life of Bishop McKendree," gives this incident in the course of Mr. Easter's ministry.

"He reproved a man who became offended, and armed himself with a club, and brandished the preacher's face. The preacher calmly said, 'I regard the spilling of my blood for the sake of Christ no more than the bite of a fly.'"

That man was brave and courageous, if compared to a fiend who would, in the dark hours of the night, saturate with kerosene oil and apply a torch to the home, where in quiet and peaceful rest its inmates were asleep—because, forsooth, the preacher in that home preferred to battle for his Lord rather than for Satan. But that Dothan preacher, like Mr. Easter, cannot be frightened from his work he is doing for the sake of Christ.

I ask again, "Watchman, what of the night?" In this land of Bibles, of churches where the gospel has so long been preached, where the people have boasted of their civilization, a preacher who preaches against evil is unsafe in his home in the deadly hours of the night. This is a dark picture, and a stain on our Christian civilization; nevertheless the Dothan incident has proved that it is as true as it is dark.

Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley fell by the hand of the assassin. The fiend, or fiends, at Dothan would strike down an entire family to burn one preacher who was not in accord with their Satanic lives, and one who rebuked evil for Christ's sake.

Who is "particeps criminis?" Not such men as Mr. Easter, or the Dothan preacher, surely. Then, who "What is this thou hast done?" Gen. 3:15.

Every sane man is either for or against evil, as sure as the Bible is true, and it is true.

A little girl was called by her mother to bring her a glass of water. Her little brother tripped her up. She fell and spilt the water. Who was to blame for the spilling of the water?

A man gets drunk. His sinful appetite for liquor is the cause. Where does he get it, the liquor? From a "legalized saloon." Then who made it possible to have "legalized saloons?" The Legislature of Alabama.

Who makes the Legislature of Alabama. The voters of Alabama, who are members of some church and professors of religion.

Who is not only "particeps criminis," but responsible for the "legalized saloon?" Answer, ye men who have sacredly on your knees taken your church vows, and are taught to pray, "Thy Kingdom Come."

A vote may be put in the ballot box, and you may deceive a man and make him believe you voted for him, but God cannot be deceived, and to Him we are responsible, and to Him we are to give an account in that day; and that day is coming, and then the separation. The good will go one way and the bad another. To the former, He will say "Enter thou into the joys of thy Lord." To the latter, "Depart into everlasting punishment."

A little boy asked his father if he was a prohibitionist, and he replied, "Yes, certainly papa is a prohibitionist." "Papa, didn't you vote for —?" "Yes." "Well, papa, he is against prohibition, and how could you vote for him?" "It is bed time, son. Say your prayers to mamma and go to bed."

"Say your prayers to mamma. Wonder who that papa said his prayers to, to induce him to vote for liquor?"

ILLUSION.

War I abhor.
And yet how sweet
The sound along the marching street
Of drum and life! And I forget Wet eyes of widows, and forget Broken old mothers, and the whole Dark lurchery without a soul.

Without a soul—save this bright drink

Of heady music, sweet as death;
And even my peace abiding feet
Go marching with the marching street;

For yonder, yonder, goes the life,
And what care I for human life?

The tears fill my astonished eyes,
And my full heart is like to break;
And yet 'tis all enshattered lies,
A dream those little drummers make.

Oh, it is wickedness to clothe You hideous grinning thing that stalks

Hidden in music, like a queen,
That in a garden of glory walks, Till good men live the thing they loathe!

Art, thou hast many infamies,
But not an infamy like this.
Oh, may the life, and still the drum,
And show the monster as she is.
—By Richard Le Gallienne.

Colored dresses and suits will be scarce among womanhood this fall.
They will be scarcer still by the time winter arrives.

War times may be blamed for the condition as American fabrics are fixed with colors brought from France. Only a small amount of dye can be brought over at a time, as it dies out quickly. For that reason this country finds itself on the verge of a dye famine.

Widows are about the only persons who needn't worry. Black dye doesn't have to be imported and so, when the colors run out, materials are sure to become sombre toned.
That is only one of the hardships which the war may work on Madame Fashion. When the fall styles which have already been brought over from Paris have had their day, what then.

Merchants tell the women not to worry. Fashions have already been fixed for about sixty days and before that time is out no telling what may happen.

The manager of the largest stores in the city says that fashions are settled for the winter, and colors are the only things to worry about.
French designers had their fall and winter openings long before the war began, and their models were made in this country by the time the trouble started. Coat lengths have already been agreed upon for the season ahead, and other style details have been fixed.

In case the war lasts a long time, and paralyzes the French fashion trade the big designers will come to this country, predicts this manager.
Then it'll be pretty for America.

A dealer in millinery humorously suggests that gold lace and epaulets will soon appear on feminine attire.
Beyond that he can see no disastrous effects on fashion by the war.

Men who have a liking for warm colored shirts may find themselves deprived of this pleasure if dyes become much scarcer, says a local dealer. They'd better buy their shirts now while the buying's good.
